

ABSTRACT

Defrosting frost deposited on the coolers disposed in a refrigerating -storage room for cooling the room can be carried out without the necessity of stopping the operation of refrigerating cycle and with low cost and high efficiency. Compressed air is blown to the coolers by means of nozzles to which the compressed air is supplied intermittently.